Real Reindeer Will Appear Here

This afternoon Santa Claus and some real live reindeer will make their way down Macdonald Avenue. Hundreds of children will be out to witness the spectacle as Santa makes his way down the street.

And no doubt a great many grown up children will be out to see the reindeer. The old one that is worked overtime by dad during circus time that he wants to take the children out to see the event will be taken out of the mobbings and dusted off for the occasion.

In this age of radio, movies and 200 miles per hour speed nothing seems new but we must admit that the entrance of Santa Claus as he is pictured in fancy is something that is worth seeing.

Many a child that has reached the stage where it is beginning to doubt the truth of the Santa Claus story will again have his faith revived through the appearance of the real reindeer.

Getting away from the novelty of the thing, a great deal of time effort and energy was expended in bringing the reindeer to this section from the frozen north. And for what purpose? The organization directly responsible for the animals being here saw in it valuable advertisement and publicity. At the same time they are bringing joy to a multitude of children.

No small amount of credit is due to Marie Macdonald Jensen, secretary of the Richmond Merchants' Association who arranged for the appearance of Santa and the reindeer in this city.

"BIG HUTCH" TAKEN IN NEW YORK

CONTRACT AWARDED FOR DREDGING AT WHARF

PACIFIC COAST DREDGING CO. GETS CONTRACT

Menace to Shipping at Local Wharf Is to Be Removed At Once

WILL COST ABOUT $42,000

Government Grants Permit For Dumping of Silt From The Dredging

Upon the recommendation of a committee composed of City Manager J. A. McVittie, city engineer E. A. Hoffman and city attorney D. J. Hall the city council last night granted a contract to the Pacific Coast Dredging company for the deepening of the channel in front of Richmond Municipal Wharf No. 1.

In making his report McVittie stated that the city had received a permit from the government to dump the silt in three different parts of the bay and that all arrangements were ready for the work to go ahead immediately after the holidays.

The contract calls for the removal of approximately 159,000 cubic yards of silt from the channel immediately in front of the wharf which according to shippers has become a menace to ships tying up at the local wharf.

The work will be done by clam shell dredgers and according to McVittie will cost in the neighborhood of $42,000 which is within the sum available for this work.

Continue Search In Richmond For Other Liquor Cars

Plans for a gay Christmas went to ruins when Federal Prohibition officer seized $100,000 worth of liquor Sunday morning at the Richmond Santa Fe yards. Search is now on for the third carload that was shipped to San Francisco from Los Angeles.

The car containing the loot was taken across the bay to pier 46. Col. Sam Johnson, enforcement head, stationed six men to guard the car when it was rumored that high jackers intended to seize the car.

It is believed that part of the liquor has been stolen from government warehouses in the south. In the last three days two raids were conducted netting two carloads of liquor valued at $100,000 each. The arrest of several of the leaders in the biggest rum smuggling circle in the west is believed imminent.

Investigation leads the officials to believe that the venture is backed by capital involving millions of dollars, Johnson declared.

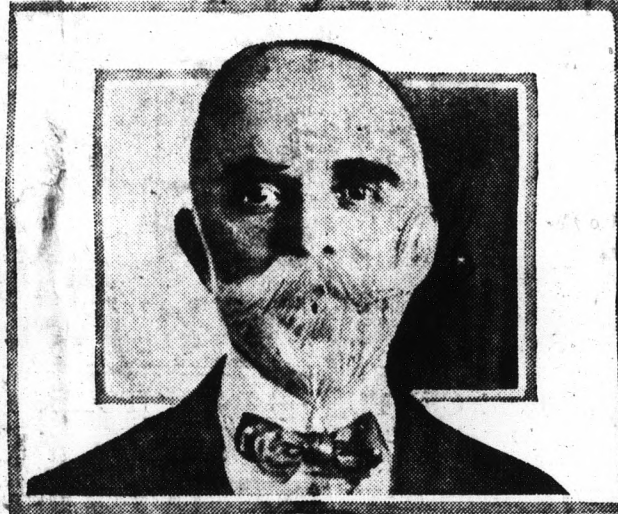

The first car was seized Friday night at the Santa Fe yards and the liquor was unloaded and stored at a warehouse on Second and Brannon, Saturday. 300 barrels labeled "crockery" were found to contain 800 cases of whiskey.

Both cars came from Wingfoot, eighty miles from Los Angeles, and near Long Beach and Redondo Beach. The authorities believe that the liquor was smuggled in to land near these points.

The consignee of the liquor, George Hakley of the Dalt Hotel of San Francisco, was placed under arrest Friday night, when he claimed the first car, and will be re-arrested as a result of the second seizure, according to the officials. Federal authorities declare that ten cars have been consigned to him recently, involving an investment of over $1,000,000.

MAN IS HELD FOR BURGLARY

Suspicious looking bundles are being observed closely by the local police these days and as a result another "would-be burglar" is lodged in the city jail awaiting trial on a charge of stealing some clothing from the Commercial Rooming house, 320 First street.

A few minutes before midnight last night Sergeant H. A. Messenger and Patrolman Salisbury noticed a suspicious looking character at Second street and Macdonald avenue.

Investigation revealed the bundle to contain clothing, which the culprit who gave his name as Leroy Bennett revealed he had removed from the rooming house. Bennett told the police a number of conflicting stories and when he was returned to the rooming house, it was found that he had rented a room earlier in the evening and that the clothing he carried in the bundle had been removed from the room. He is being held on a charge of burglary.

Body Of Woman Is Found Under Water In Car

The body of Mrs. Hazel Selby, missing since 2 o'clock Saturday morning, was found off the end of pier 43, foot of Powell street, San Francisco, yesterday afternoon. She was imprisoned in her automobile under 40 feet of water. The car had skidded, and marks were found indicating that the brakes had been frantically set when it was headed for the open water. Mrs. Selby had driven a naval officer down to pier 5 on Friday night, where he took a private launch for Angel Island at 2 a. m. It was going home, evidently, that she skidded off the end of the pier.

Mrs. Selby is the divorcee of Walter Selby, candy manufacturer, and had obtained an interlocutory decree last June, along with a $40,000 settlement. He was present as the police detail, with scrapping hooks, raised the sunken car and released the imprisoned body. He wept as he helped place the limp body in the ambulance. He left immediately to comfort the dead woman's mother, Mrs. Mary E. Wolfing, and his own three children, the eldest of whom is 12.

GOVERNOR TO ASK FOR HIS RETURN HERE

Parole of Hutchins Was Revoked by Governor November 27

PAROLED ON AUGUST 8TH

Is Accused of Being "Go-Between of Los Angeles Officials"

"Big Hutch" Hutchins, notorious confidence operator of Los Angeles, who disappeared after his recent parole from San Quentin prison was revoked by Governor Richmond on November 27, has been arrested in New York, according to reports from the governor.

Extradition papers are all prepared by the governor, ready for the return of Hutchins to California and prison. No direct reference to the investigation on banco operations in Los Angeles, which the grand jury made there last week, were made by Governor Richardson, but he issued a statement in which he declared that he had information Hutchins "was the go-between in transactions between bunco men and certain Los Angeles officials."

That was the governor's only assertion against the Los Angeles city officials that they gave protection to Hutchins and other confidence men in exchange for a percentage of their spoils.

Hutchins was convicted in Los Angeles of buncoing one J. B. Norris out of $51,000 and committed to San Quentin. He was paroled on August 8, to go to New York, and his parole was revoked by the governor on the grounds that he had not served sufficient time and that he was not employed by the company he was supposed to have been paroled to.

SIKI'S WIND-UP

An isolated incident placed Battling Siki on the world's amusement program and he cashed in on his prominence until the day he came to his inevitable end.

It was his conquest of the battered and heartsick Georges Carpentier that brought Siki to the land of fan and dollar. The real hero was not Siki, but Carpentier, who had been a lot longer building up the reputation than the black boxer in toppling it down.

Siki was not the kind of fellow who could stand the prosperity which American fanatics give to their favorites. There have been so many sad examples in athletics, on the screen and stage.

He threw back to some jungle philosophy that didn't fit the conditions under which he tried to live in this country. No one knows how many times he was beaten up in rows with the riff raff of the underworld. The country had ceased attending to his adventures because there was a monotony to them. It became interested finally in his exit, not because it was spectacular, but because it was expected. Siki made good.

EGGS BY WEIGHT

It seemed merely funny, years ago, when a miser in a play by Goldoni appeared in a grocery store with an iron ring and announced that he would buy no eggs that were so small as to go through that ring. The very idea of making a fuss about the size of eggs! But nearly everybody is doing it now.

Big eggs nowadays, when sorted out, command the best price. The little ones have to be mighty good in flavor and freshness to hold their own. And the very ancient custom of counting eggs by the dozen is in danger of passing out, in favor of weighing them.

Why not? The value of an egg, other things being equal, depends on its liquid contents; and since it is awkward to measure them by the pint like other liquids, it is natural to weigh them. A pound of eggs would mean just about the same thing every time, whereas one dozen of eggs may have twice as much "egg" as another dozen.

Many vegetables and fruits, formerly sold by "dry measure," or by number, are now being sold by the pound. Eggs will follow suit.

KELLOGG'S SPEECH

In the language that was perhaps plainer and less scholarly, but just as full of meaning as the famous Harding administration pronouncements of Charles Evans Hughes, Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg has notified the world, including Americans that the watchword of the American government is still "America."

The administration withstood some sharp criticism on the Karolyi and Saklatvala incidents, but it has come through untarnished in reputation. Some day the caustic-tongued liberals will recognize that the American government does not consider even a picayune British red as too small to regard when a principle is to be upheld. Therefore, if the aforementioned liberals will admit everyone's right to follow his own principles, they will have to admit too that the government was right. Their only quarrel with the administration will then be seen to be one of principle alone.

If cough syrup contained a greater "kick" more people would have colds.

Columbus Before Isabella

Columbus was not the only man in Europe who believed that the world was round. The theory was coming to be pretty largely accepted by learned men of his time.

But Columbus was the only man who attempted to make effective a plan for a demonstration that the world was round and that Asia could be reached by sailing westward as well as eastward. Columbus was a sailor fairly well educated for men of that time. He was born in Genoa, Italy. His parents were wool combers.

He is credited with having joined in some explorations of the African coast under the Portuguese flag. There is also a more or less doubtful record of a voyage to Iceland.

Columbus first took the idea that the covered route to India could be reached by sailing westward to the Portuguese king. Meeting with rebuff he went to Spain and offered the plan to Ferdinand and Isabella, then the reigning monarchs.

There he was made promises only to have them recalled and was rebuffed time after time.

At length he gave up hope of interesting Spain and was about to take the project to England.

Friends however, made a last effort with the Queen and he was recalled.

There is a pretty story that the Queen sold her jewels to raise the money necessary to finance Columbus' expedition. However, that may be, on April 17, 1492, the papers were signed by the King and the Queen, which gave Columbus warrant to proceed with his plans.

As a reward Columbus was to be admiral of such regions as he might discover and was to be made ruler under Spain of whatever countries were acquired.

The King and Queen of Spain did not finance the expedition in its entirety. Columbus also received important aid from a family of Spanish merchants—the Pinzons.

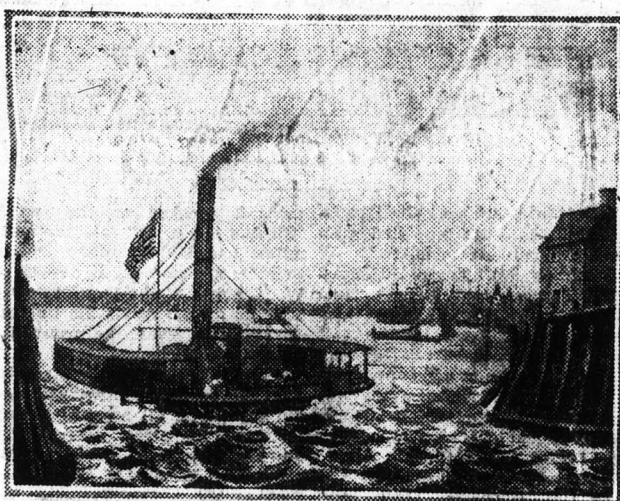

But Columbus' troubles were not over. He was willing to sail the unknown seas but the general run of seamen were not.

Superstitious and ignorant, the sailors believed the monsters of the deep, or worse still, "the falling off place" would be reached once the ships got beyond known waters.

The next installment deals with Columbus' organization of first expedition.

AN EAST RIVER FERRY BOAT OF 1825

A reproduction of one of 150 murals in the Ter-Centenary Exhibit of New York, which will continue until 1926, at Wanamaker's.

A LITTLE over a hundred years ago the first ferry boat made its puffing debut on the Hudson and East Rivers. And with what suspicion was it viewed by the old-time residents of New Jersey! Its appearance did not inspire confidence, with the giraffe of a smokestack seeking a draught! The steam engine was a temperamental guiding genius in those days, and once in its care, the passengers might expect it to come to a dead stop amid stream, or to blow up in an unaccountable fit. So the first passengers were real heroes, but by the 30's, when this picture was taken, the new was already old, and people and hay wagons thronged the docks, without thought of disaster.

Grumbling under his breath, the "cave" turned toward the steps. Then Doc stepped violently back, with a savage "Hell!"

Connemara's heart leaped with a thrill as the two shadows in the hallway suddenly took on clear outlines and stepped full into the moonlight. One was short and stocky, the other tall and graceful, in the hand of each something silvery glistened.

Then a voice that Connemara had last heard as she was struggling to kick off a pair of silver slippers in the dark waters of Long Island Sound grated upon the air: "Stick up your arms! Stick 'em up! Or maybe the two of ye'd like to get shot full of nice little round holes!"

"McTish," Connemara whispered, in a rising hysterical note, "I told you so, you poor fish," snapped Sweetie, promptly elevating her hands, and turned at the same time to blast the Swede with fury. But in that moment, with an agility which startled Connemara almost out of her wits, the big blond Swede had stooped behind the wicker chair in which she was helplessly bound, and was dragging her, chair and all, toward the open door of the house.

"Go on and shoot!" he yelled, mockingly. "Maybe you could miss her!"

What she was, "Well, for cryin' out loud!"—a phrase which her Aunt Celimena would have recognized as a euphemism. It was an exclamation denoting surprise; a surprise not due to the vision of Salt and Bing, in bathrobes, now on the scene and engaged in an apparently violent altercation with the red-headed McTish not far away; nor to the sight of Sweetie, binding the familiar perfumed handkerchief around her own calf and weeping gently the while; nor, again, was it a purple and swelling eye, staring anxiously at her from a foot away, an eye whose pleasant twinkling had captured considerable of her interest when she had first climbed into a strange motor car many hours before. No, what startled her was the fact that the owner of the eye was encircling her waist with strong tenderness, and his voice was whispering, "Sweetheart, Sweetheart!"

She found the sensation singularly pleasurable. Why hadn't she fought down the impulse to cry out? Too late. For Lacy, reddening, started back, relaxed his hold upon her waist, and burred, "Oh, Lord, I was afraid—Thank Heaven, you're all right!"

She sat up, felt herself gingerly, then smiled coolly. "Quite all right, thank you."

Quickly she got to her feet, serene despite the consciousness that there would be, before many minutes, numerous painful spots upon her ribs which would take on the color of Lacy's eye. What a peach he was! And so fearless. And so very strong! That steel arm of his about her waist—

But this was not yet the time for sentimentality. The fifty thousand—that must be accounted for first. She turned to McTish.

"You didn't find the money on those men, did you?" she asked. Her glance strayed past him and scrutinized the shadows of the porch curiously. "Why—why, where are they? The Swede, I mean, and Doc. Oh, McTish," she yelled, "they didn't get away after all!"

"They did!" the diminutive Scotsman growled in disgust. "These gentlemen"—a nod indicated the bathrobed figures at his side—"heard the noise, an' figured maybe they might be needed. So they cam' down, just in time to mix up in that wedge in the doorway, w' the result that when things quieted down a bit, an' somebody had presence o' mind to strike a light, Mr. Lacy, here, was holdin' on to you Adams feller, an' Mr. Carrington was game in a clinch, an' the gang was game—clank. Naturally, an' a pretty endin' for two nicks o' hard work."

He glared at the unlucky Bing and Salt, whose unasked assistance had so unexpectedly and neatly defeated his careful planning.

"An' the fifty thousand's game too," he added drarily. "We'll never see a ha'penny o' it now. We'd a' had that an' the gang likewise if bunsbodies 'd only kept their hands off. It wasn't hard to figure out if Sweetie an' the money was bath in the house the night, the rest o' the creatures'd be ha'g'in' round somewhere."

McTish, holding out his revolver, was leaping ridiculously about the locked figures.

The flop of the Swede's flat-iron shoes diminished. A window was flung up, and she knew that he had leaped out.

As she fought to right herself, she heard the noises of unmistakable conflict upon the porch. Why didn't McTish shoot? But of course—he was afraid of hitting her. And already the Swede must be creeping through the bushes; at any moment he would hurl himself from the rear upon the two unwitting rescuers.

With desperate heave she toppled the wicker chair from her back and rolled over facing the porch. One glance took in the situation. Scarcely a yard from her, Doc and the slim, tall man were locked in what looked like some new dance step—only there was a silent grimace about the dance which froze her blood. McTish, holding out his revolver, was leaping ridiculously about the locked figures, obviously unable to make a decision between keeping Sweetie covered with the gun and bringing it down upon Doc's head. Sweetie, meanwhile, with infinitesimal steps was edging toward the very doorway through which the Swede had escaped, and within which Connemara was sprawled.

Then it happened. "Look out!" Connemara shrieked. But already the Swede, like a gigantic rug thrown by an invisible hand, had sailed out of the darkness and completely enveloped McTish. Down they went. And at the thud Sweetie dashed for the doorway.

Connemara kicked out. Sweetie, brought up sharply in mid-flight, yelled, "Gawd! My shin!" and her whole body fell across Connemara's chest. Connemara collapsed limply, but even as she felt that the breath would never return to her lungs, a voice inside her head kept insisting, "You must hang on! You must!"

Sweetie was losing no time in regaining her feet. Shaken though she was by her fall, she managed to grasp the chair, and had already pulled herself up to a standing position, one foot upon Connemara's shoulder, the other close by the prostrate girl's nose.

We don't know why Luther Burbank has decided to retire, but we shouldn't wonder if it were discouragement about the cantaloupe.—Ohio State Journal.

S. P. Holds Train Crew Blameless In Ekenberg Accident

The Southern Pacific Company's board of directors released a report yesterday that Edward D. Ekenberg of El Cerrito, was responsible for the accident at the crossing north of Richmond which cost him his life and the Southern Pacific or any of its employees were not in any ways in fault with the tragedy. According to the board all signals were operating at the crossing, which can be seen from a distance of 1500 feet. Ekenberg was first observed by the engineer when he was 120 feet from the crossing and he applied the air brakes, the report declared.

THE MARRIAGE WHIRL IS FILM AT RICHMOND

A woman's faithfulness to a jazz-mad husband, who dragged her to the very rim of the vortex of Parisian night life, is graphically envisioned in Corinne Griffith's latest screen endeavor, "The Marriage Whirl," first National current offering at the Richmond theatre.

Starting in its realism, the film brings home the lesson that the woman who "sticks" isn't always the sensible and successful being that she is held up to be, and that loyalty on the part of one without faithfulness on the part of the other is no gain to either.

Expertly assisting Miss Griffith in the development of this absorbing plot are Kenneth Harlan, Harrison Ford, Nita Naldi and a half dozen other prominent screen delineators.

The crash and color of the jazz-swept French capital is all there, forming a throbbing background for one of the most dramatic achievements of the screen. It's based on the successful J. Hartley Manners stage play, "The National Anthem."

Al Santell directed the picture. Other features include "A Business Engagement," another Helen and Warren comedy; "Topics of the Day," "Oesop's Fables."

Quicksand Scene Shown In Film at The California

The script of "Thunder Mountain," the latest William Fox production to be directed by Victor Schertzinger, and now playing at the California theatre, called for Arthur Houseman as Joe Givens, the villain, to die in the quicksands. Hence quicksands had to be developed in the quiet waters of a little stream running through the Santa Cruz mountains in California, where the exteriors of the picture were filmed.

At first it looked as if this would be an easy thing to do—simply a matter of digging a hole in the river bed and placing a box in such a way that Joe could appear to be sucked down into the treacherous sands.

However, when the crew started to work on the "quicksands" it was found the task was an exceedingly difficult one. It was necessary to dam the stream just above the spot where the action was to take place and to scrape the river bottom for a considerable distance before the hole could be dug and the box built on which the luckless Joe was to sink.

"Thunder Mountain" is a story of how a little effish wulf and an idealistic mountain lad cleaned up a rough and poverty-stricken community high up in the Kentucky hills. It is filled with tensely thrilling moments as well as with homely humor.

Madge Bellamy and Leslie Fenton head the all-star cast which includes Alec Francis, Emily Fitzroy, Zasu Pitts, Arthur Houseman, Otis Harlan, Maine Geary and Dan Mason.

Other features include "Pleasure Bound," a Lige Conley comedy; "Topics of the Day," Larry Canele at the organ.

Coming tomorrow, Syd Chaplin in "The Man on the Box," and its funnier than "Charley's Aunt."

CARING FOR ELECTRICAL APPLIANCES

By Susan Ellen Dodge

Household electrical appliances are in no way different from other things—to give most service they must be properly cared for. Many of us, to whom they are still quite new and very wonderful, forget their limitations. We credit them with powers which neither they nor anything else in this constantly changing world possess and hence we neglect them.

This is particularly true of motorized appliances such as the electric cleaner, dishwasher, clothes washer, ironer, sewing machine, kitchen aid and fan. Any one of these appliances will continue to accomplish wonders if kept clean, in good repair, and properly oiled.

Keeping these appliances clean seems simple enough though we do not always do it, but oiling is a little more difficult. For this reason in many households this task is left to the master-of-the-house and the woman who uses the appliances consequently remains entirely ignorant of the working of these mechanisms. In many respects this is an excellent idea—the man should be made to lend a hand wherever it is necessary or possible—but turning the care of our electric labor savers over to them has its drawbacks as well as its advantages. Being unfamiliar with the way they operate we are sometimes left stranded in the middle of a task. Then we must either wait until the head-of-the-house returns or call in the neighborhood electrician who may or may not be immediately available.

Having been caught once or twice in such a predicament I have since made it a rule to learn all I can about each of my electric appliances and how to clean and oil them. The result is that rarely, if ever, do I experience any trouble.

From three years of constant use of all kinds of electrical house hold labor savers I have learned one lesson which every housewife should know, and that is, that most mishaps to electrical appliances are directly traceable to lack of care and proper oiling. Keep the appliance thoroughly clean and well oiled and it will repay you many times over.

Don't leave it for someone else to do—do it yourself. It is very simple and if you are in doubt as to how often to oil the appliance or what kind of oil to use consult the manufacturer's instruction card or book or write him for advice and he will be very glad to give it.

Kills Self When Love Affair Ends

BERKELEY, Dec. 21.—Despondent over losing his childhood sweetheart was the cause of Richard Ough, member of a prominent Sacramento family, shooting himself yesterday, according to police. Letters in the young man's possession showed that he had been worried over the intimacy of Miss Pearl Boyden, a teacher in the Edison Junior high school, with another man.

The last person to see Ough alive was Miss Boyden, who states that he had called on her in the morning, saying that he just "dropped in". It was at that time that she told him that any affection she ever had for him was gone, and that she did not care to see him again. He replied that he knew that all was over between them and that he had just called as a friend.

Rancher Found In Cabin With Throat Slashed

MARTINEZ, Dec. 21.—Pedro De Sales, a Mexican rancher was found murdered in a lonely shack on Pear Ranch, Sunday night. The slain man was strapped to a chair and his throat was cut from ear to ear. Sheriff R. R. Veale and deputies are searching the vicinity for the murderer.

It was reported that De Sales had considerable money in the cabin and on his person. Robbery is supposed to have been the motive.

The only clue is the pocket knife used to cut the victim's throat.

The body was found by a neighbor who reported the affair to the sheriff's office.

Record of Man Killed in Brawl Being Checked

The record of Roy Kinikin, who was fatally shot at a rooming house at Oakland Sunday morning, is being closely checked by the Oakland police, in an effort to ascertain whether the victim was the same man who burglarized the office of Dr. P. C. Campbell of Richmond. Kinikin was convicted of the robbery and sentenced to serve from one to five years in San Quentin, according to the Richmond police records.

The proprietor of the rooming house, W. C. Blackburn, told the police that he and his wife went to bed about midnight, Saturday night, leaving Kinikin and another roomer, Mrs. Nell Haas, in the kitchen drinking a gallon of wine. About three o'clock he heard a shot and rushed to the kitchen and found Kinikin on the floor with a bullet in his abdomen. Mrs. Haas and Pazzani were not there.

Police arrested Pazzani at his home, 1637 Eighty-eight avenue. Kinikin was employed by the Pacific Gas and Electric company.

The Truth About RADIO

There is a great deal of exaggeration about radio, bred by enthusiasm, the lure of the game, and the genuine lack of knowledge of this newly discovered force. Any radio engineer states frankly that there are many things about radio that no one can get explain. A real radio expert is very conservative in his claims. While he is familiar with the wonders of this new plaything of man—he also knows its limitations.—Radio is wonderful enough as it is, without exaggeration.

(FIRST) You cannot get both long distance and quality of reception at the same time. It must be one or the other. If your eyes sparkle at a squeak from 3,000 miles away—be satisfied. If, however, you want music that is real music—don't try the "long shots."

(SECOND) You cannot get both high selectivity and quality. If you thrill at bringing in stations from all over the map, be content with that. But if you want clear, sweet tones—limit yourself to nearby stations.

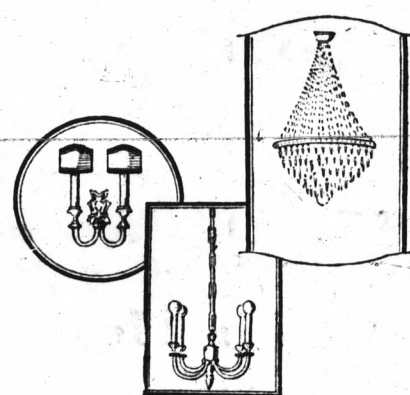

(THIRD) Don't buy a radio in a store. Buy it in your home. Your home may be in a radio "pocket." If so, the best radio set in the world will not get you good results.

(FOURTH) The broadcasting station has as much to do with results as your receiving set. The art of broadcasting is still in its infancy. You may expect big advances from that end.

ACTRESS FILES SUIT AGAINST HER HUSBAND

Mrs. Jane Urban Linde, former leading woman of the Alcazar theatre, filed suit yesterday in Los Angeles for separate maintenance for herself and child from her husband, Phillip J. Linde, basing her allegations of infidelity on his part.

A SHORT TIME AGO MRS. LINDE LED PRIVATE DETECTIVES INTO THE HOTEL OAKLAND, WHERE SHE FOUND HER HUSBAND WITH ANOTHER WOMAN.

In her suit she named Helen Makinson, as the woman in the case. Mrs. Makinson is said to be the wife of a prominent Piedmont physician. The couple were married in Denver, Colorado, December 2, 1917, and separated September 18, 1925. Mrs. Linde asks the custody of the 17-month-old child.

U. S. LANDING FIELDS SHOWN ON HUGE MAP

(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—The hydrographic office of the Navy, which for more than a century has devoted its efforts to making the ocean safe for navigators, is now making the air safe for navigators.

After many months of labor it has completed a chart indicating all possible landing fields in the United States, compass courses between principal cities and all areas of possible danger to fliers whose courses lie over either land or water.

While designed especially for use by naval aviators the chart will be made generally available.

"It is expected that the use of such charts will add to the safety of navigation of aircraft, just as modern charts have added to the safety of sea navigation."

Plant House to Be Built for the City Parks Here

The city park department is to have a lath house in which to raise plants and shrubs for the city parks according to information brought out at the meeting of the city council last night.

When the advantage of the construction of such a building was made to the council by Councilman Marie Ogborn city Manager J. A. McVittie pointed out that arrangements had already been made for the construction of the plant whenever it could be used.

The new plant which will assist these in charge of the city parks to secure more plants at a smaller cost is to be built on two lots adjacent to Alvarado Park in the near future.

BOLD BANDITS ROB BIG HOTEL

ST. LOUIS, Dec. 2.—With thousands of travelers in the adjoining waiting room four men today held up the Fred Harvey hotel in the St. Louis Union station and obtained $2,500 in cash. The bandits held handkerchiefs to their faces and were so quiet in their orders that only the cashier was aware of the holdup.

A Christmas party was given last night at the Memorial Hall by the Royal Neighbors and the Modern Woodmen. Mrs. Carrie Sheldon was in charge of the party. A large Christmas tree was decorated and it bore gifts for the Royal Neighbor Juveniles.

Banditry Is Laid To Dope In House Committee Report

By ARTHUR HACHTEN
(By Universal Service)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 21.—Declaring that banditry is increasing by leaps and bounds throughout the United States, and particularly in New York, as a result of the narcotic drug evil, the House committee on education has filed a report recommending participation by the federal government in a conference of civic leaders at Philadelphia June 2, to July 2, 1926. The object is to help shape a gigantic educational program to combat drug addiction.

While the report did not specify the way in which the government will co-operate, Representative Daniel A. Reed of New York, chairman of the committee, said that a joint committee of Congress will be suggested to attend the session. Reporting favorably to the House resolutions introduced by Representative Walter F. Lineberger, Republican of California, that the government take part in the conference, the education committee said:

"The chief purpose of the conference is to meet the new menace that has come upon America and Europe in the expedition of the drug heroin."

Although this drug was discovered in 1898 and was only brought to this country in 1909-10, its ravages have been so rapid that already more than half of the inmates of correctional institutions of New York City are heroinetic, nearly all below 30, the average being 22, and going down.

The new menace has brought forth in practically all parts of the country organized banditry, the extent of which can be partly gauged by the fact that, in places, bank insurance has gone up as much as 100 per cent in one year.
